Town opens door to new youth hangout

BY SYLVIA COLE Reivew Staff

Those who felt the loss of the Youth 360 Centre last ear will have a new place to hang out starting the end of

The Community Services Board approved an application for $5,000 to the newly established Open Doors project, a partnership between the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church, the Town of Didsbury and other community members including Westglen School employees. The program will offer a weekly after-school hangout for teens 13-18.

"There needs to be a place for kids to connect. There isn't a lot to do for kids this age," said Alison Lefebvre, involved with youth ministry at the Zion Church, who is helping spearhead Open Doors.

She was working with Julie Poffenroth, also with Open Doors, last week to secure additional funding through Alberta Parks and Recreation.

The Zion Church currently runs a Back Door drop-in, roughly every five to six weeks, that gives teens a place to hang out with friends, play in the gym or try out some Wii games, said Lefebrye, who said they see upwards of 200 young people attend. From that program, they've heard from youth a desire to have a place to call their

Last December the town decided to temporarily close Youth 360 Centre, an after-school drop-in centre offered four days a week, due to lack of resources. But when it came time to open its doors this summer, teens discovred the program was bumped from the budget. Both Lefebrye and Poffenroth want to offer something to the kids looking for a place just for them

And Jolene Leutschaft, program coordinator with the town agrees

"We reach out to the needs of children up to 12 and after that there seems to be a gap in services. So we're just trying to fill that gap," she said. The program won't be offered as often as the Youth 360

Centre was, at least initially. Though this caused concern from teens when the project was announced in the summer, Leutschaft said they're starting out small on pur-

"We don't want this to grow into something big and look back and go, 'oh no, we can't handle all of this.' So we're starting small and if the need is there we'll sit down and look and say, 'OK, can we start a second evening?"

Lefebvre and Poffenroth didn't go into details about what exactly will be offered, saying they are still in the preliminary stages of planning, but said they want it to be both a place where teens can hang out and play some activities, but also offer programs that teens can benefit and learn from.

In the summer, there was mention of the town offering a leadership program where teens could learn how to write a resume, do job interviews or apply for post-sec ondary schools and Leutschaft said there will be an element of that at Open Doors.

Lefebvre said most youth don't know about Open Doors yet, as the group has kept it quiet as they figure out the details.

"This is still a small enough town that we can still partner on all sorts of stuff. This is a community initiative and I love that," she said.

The program is set to launch sometime at the end of Mayor Brian Wittal and Richard Marz down last week for the first time with Greer Black, CEO of Bethany Centre to discuss Care plans for the 100-bed sup-portive living facility com-

"Plans are still in preliminary stages right now," said Wittal, of what came from the meeting. He said Black talked of having a mixed-assisted living facility with long-term beds included but that plans aren't "100 per cent." Wittal said Black hopes to build a facility that can be some what flexible to meet changing needs of the community but he still has to talk Alberta with Health Services, to find out exactly what they're hoping for.

The next step in the lans, is securing land. Wittal proposed four locations that were realistic to work with. The four potential locations for the Bethany Care project include the old high school grounds located across from the Ross Ford Elementary School, the hospital, across the street from the hospital (by Alfred Place) and near the current high school.

He hopes to hear confirmation at the end of next month on where Bethany

A $5,000 lawn ornament was jacked from the front of a business last week leaving owner Rob Jacobsen suspicious of the timing. The blue and white pumpjack that sits outside Wells Gray Enterprises Ltd., along 15th Ave in town, was noticed missing last Wednesday afternoon.

Duncan remains in custody

BY DAN SINGLETON Review Staff

A 60-year-old woman charged with second-degree murder after her 68-year-old husband was shot dead at the couple's home south of Sundre on Dec. 10 will remain in custody pending a bail hearing on January 13.

Heather Wilson Duncan made a brief appearance in Didsbury provincial court via closed circuit TV from the Calgary Remand Centre on Monday.

Her lawyer, Calgary's Greg Dunn, told Judge George Gaschler that Duncan will appear in Court of Queen's Bench on January 13 for a bail or show cause hearing.

She will then appear in Didsbury provincial court on January 24 when a preliminary hearing date may be set.

During her appearance on closed circuit on Monday, Dunn did not speak other than when asked by Crown prosecutor Roy Smith whether she could follow proceedings via the closed circuit TV. She replied," Yes, I can hear and I can see."

Following court, Dunn said he plans to seek the accused's release on bail at the Jan. 13 court sitting.

From a review of the initial disclosure given to the defence by the Crown it appears that the shooting may have been accidental, he said.

"An accident is a completely plausible explanation," said Dunn.

Police were called to a rural residence south of Sundre shortly after 6 p.m. on Dec. 10 where they found Barry Alexander Dunn shot dead. The accused was arrested without incident at the scene.

Library hosts exhibit

BY SYLVIA COLE Review Staff

Librarians are hoping an exhibit, that kicked off last week, will draw people in town to come visit.

"I would love for more people ... mostly the people who see it are the people who come to the library," said library manager Inez Kosinski of the travelling exhibition that Didsbury Municipal Library hosts two to three times a year.

The last exhibit was in June and July and the theme was Checkerboards and other patterns. This time, the exhibit will focus on colour photographs by Susanne Swibold, titled Centrefold.

A veteran artist based in Canmore, she is recognized for her experimental approach to constructing and exposing photographic images. Swibold spent two decades living and working with the Aleut people of Pribilof and Commander Islands in the Bering Sea, documenting their culture and natural history through photography, film audio recordings and written research.

"Since 1971 I have been exploring symmetry in nature through a process of superimposing a mirror image onto itself. At that time I had an intuition that there was a hidden world that existed in nature beyond appearance," she said.

The exhibition will display three interrelated series. Badlands focuses on rock formations, Animal Spirits focuses on cultural artifacts and Landscape focuses on topography and vegetation.

Kosinski said the exhibit is great for all ages and comes with a guide that even students can use. She hopes to see more students come view the exhibit, something she hasn't seen for awhile during the exhibits.

The exhibit will be on display at the Didsbury Municipal Library from December 15 to January

Centrefold is a touring exhibition developed by the Alberta Society of Artists. The exhibition is currently circulating throughout the southwest and central parts of Alberta.

Toy safety a holiday season must

DAN SINGLETON

In many homes across West Central Alberta the holiday season means the arrival of lots of new toys for youngsters. As it always has been, receiving gifts meant for play is one of the great things about growing up, a great part of the childhood experience

And while the kids will no doubt welcome their new toys with open arms, parents and other guardians have a wholly different obligation: making absolutely sure that each and every toy that ends up in a youngster's hand is safe to be there.

With all the excitement of the holiday season, it's important to take the time to ensure that everything that can be done to prevent toy mishaps is done.

Health Canada's 2010 'Play Smart, Play Safe' awareness campaign is aimed at making sure kids only get toys that are right for their age – and that caregivers carefully and thoroughly follow all assembly and disposal instructions.

The key message of the campaign is clear and simple: Using unsafe toys — or using safe toys in unsafe ways — can pose any number of risks for youngsters. Health Canada offers the following tips:

• Small toys, balls or toy parts pose choking hazards to young children — they should always be kept out of the reach of young children. Parents and caregivers should check for and discard squeeze toys with loose or removable squeakers, toy cars and trucks with loose or removable wheels or other small parts, the eyes, nose and other small items on stuffed/plush toys that could be pulled off.

 Toys with long or stretchy cords are also hazards. The cords can easily become wrapped around a child's neck.

 Playing too long and too often with loud toys can damage a child's hearing. Look for toys with volume control features so that the sound can be kept low or even turned off. If you have to yell to be heard above the sound of a toy, then the toy is too loud and should not be used.

Sharp edges or points on a toy can cut a child.
 Repair or discard any weak or damaged toys.

 Toy packaging such as plastic bags, plastic wrap, foam, and twist ties can suffocate or choke a child. After buying a toy, promptly discard all packaging.

 The handles on rattles and teethers should be large enough to not get stuck in an infant's throat.

The holiday season is a fantastic time for youngsters ever so pleased with their new toys. It's also a time when parents and other caregivers need to ensure that each and every toy is safe and sound.

The biggest re-gifters of all

They're known as the re-gifters

They take something that is yours, hold onto it for a year, re-package it, give it back to you and expect a hearty thank you. Re-gifting is possibly the 'Grinchy-est' move in the cheapo Christmas playbook. Typically, when someone is caught regifting, they hang their head in shame.

But there is one group of people that has made re-gifting a regular mode of operation. In fact, these people have taken re-gifting and elevated it to an art form. We're speaking of the provincial government, of course.

Alberta Health Services announced last week that it will increase the number of surgeries funded in 2011 by 5,000 at a cost of $16.7 million. It was a wonderful Christmas present wrapped up in the finest press releases with a shiny new bow on top

Of course, once the paper was removed, we learned that these were not really "new" surgeries. The government added 3,367 surgeries as part of pilot projects launched in 2010. In 2011 it will add the remaining 1,300 surgeries, for a total of 5,000 more surgeries than in 2009. That's the kind of math we've come to expect from Premier Stelmach's health system.

Make no mistake, the people who have cancer, heart problems or any of the other conditions requiring surgery will be appreciative of the care.

Of course, being taxpaying Alberta citizens, they have a right to the care they've been paying for even before this 'gift' was left under the tree for them

So, to Premier Stelmach, we have this special Christmas message, "5,000 'new' surgeries? Ummm, thanks, I guess."

Letter to the editor Power line bid not what it appears

Re: Letter to the editor, on page 4 of the Dec. 14 Re Alberta's Chambers of Commerce advocate for higher electric bills? Ken Kobly is the president and CEO of the Alberta Chambers of Commerce. His recent comments to the editor that Alberta's transmission lines are creaky and can no longer conduct a stable supply of electricity to Albertans is counter factual and fundamentally inappropriate. Kobly's comments appear to be more politically motivated, than based on any credible quantifiable study capable of qualifying for approval from an unbiased regulatory board.

Every published technical study conducted on these pro Every published technical study conducted on these pro-posed transmission lines refers to the projects as inefficient and economically unjustifiable. Ironically, even the govern-ment's own Utility Consumer Advocate (UCA) paid for a study that urged the UCA to oppose these transmission lines because they were uneconomical and unnecessary. The UCA study also insinuated that the Alberta Electric Systems Operator (AESO) was being biased in its assumptions. It is amazing to think that a pseudo government agency paid for a study that accused another pseudo government agency of being biased Both agencies claim to be independent, but there is little convincing evidence to support either claims.

What is most embarrassing about Kobly's comments is that as a business person, he would advocate spending $14.5 billion without having conducted a cost-benefit analysis.

It is shocking to think that anyone would proceed knowing that the AESO has never conducted a cost-benefit analysis for any of these proposed projects.

Had Kobly done his homework he would have discovered that the AESO is actually proposing to build $16.6 billion in transmission projects over the next ten years, not $14.5 billion, but what is a couple of billion dollars amongst friends when it is all being paid for by the ratepayers of Alberta? Building transmission lines does not produce one extra watt of power. If we need more power then we must build generators. It is that simple! Transmission lines only move power from where it is generated (located), to where it is Kobly could have told us in his letter where he thinks the generators are located in Alberta and where he thinks the electricity needs to go. For example, should the public pay $600 million to build a twin 500KV transmission line from Genesee to the Heartland, or build a $260 million generator that would supply more than the amount of power required in the Heartland?

The added advantage of building a generator where it is needed would increase the reliability of the system and also add to the efficiency and life of the existing lines. Clearly the public would benefit more by building a generator where it is

In closing, the "Consumers for Competitive Transmission" referred to these projects as "unnecessarily mortgaging Alberta's future."

This industry group is made up of the forestry, petro-chemi-cal, fabricated metal, and machinery industries. Together they employ nearly 100,000 Albertans and indirectly they affect the imployment of nearly 400,000 Albertans.

Kobly should take a second look at these employment numbers before these jobs start to disappear due to the high cost of building inefficient transmission lines.

Then again, maybe the 22,000 businesses Kobly claims to represent might just want a new representative after they start to see their electric bills triple. - Joe Anglin,

"It's usually grade 12 students who get invited. They split it up into east and west zones. It's not competitive but more of a way to give them a chance to play together and get some memories," said

Paulgaard said teams from Sundre, Carstairs, Acme, Dutchess, Young Town, and Nathaniel were some of the areas represented.

You battle against these guys all year and you get to play with them at the final tournament. That was the fun part for Carstairs and Didsbury, he said.

James Lefebvre won the MVP award for the west all stars.

"It's great to see he (Lefebvre) received the award. These guys do a lot of work, and not just in athleticism so it's great when they get recog-nized."

Open season with Overtime Loss Dragons JV

In the Dragons JV first of the Monday, the team lost 48-45 against the Olds Spartans. was a hard fought battle that included free throws by the Spartans with 20 seconds left to tie the game, an overtime period that went back and forth, and an in and out shot from the three point arc, said coach Overwater. Chris

"I am extremely proud of all of the kids, everyone got in the game, everyone played as hard as they could for the entire time they gave it their all" said Overwater afterwards.

He was impressed by the play of his newcomers. Braden Hautman, Jordan LaRenz, and Curtis Lepp. Hautman has never played, he had 12 rebounds, and blocked 5 shots, he struggled to finish around the hoop. Zac Overwater led all scorers with 29 points, scoring even when the Spartans worked hard to stop him.

When Dylan was in foul trouble and Jordan La Renz needed a break, the Dragons were able to go to their bench with some success as well, he added.

Nathan Archer came in for Dylan, and he did a great job defensively. Austin Vandenhoven had some steals in the first and second quarter, Matt Johnson has a great basketball body, quick feet, a good jumper, and physical strength.

One of the turning points in the game was when Dylan Wallace fouled out in the third quarter. "Dylan is our best defender so far, and he jumps well, rebounds, hits the floor, all the little things, our team dynamics changed when he left and we just didn't have anyone come off the bench to replace him. He is a complete package and we need him to stay out of foul trouble in the future, explained Overwater

By the third quarter the team began to lag behind, but kept the pace up as close they could. Overwater said with Christmas break approach ing, students will be attending a few practices and

'It looks like it will be a challenging year, we have some big shoes to fill as the previous group of boys are now on the senior team and will challenge for the provincial championship provincial championship being played right here in Didsbury in March" said Overwater. "I believe we have as much physical talent as they did in grade nine and ten, we just lack the fundamental skills and experience.

The season just kicked off for the group, with 12 students getting picked out of 17 that tried out. Coaches include Overwater, Nikkie Durstling, and Nolan McInnis. The group will host a home tournement the first weekend of January, and Overwater is confident with how the boys will do.

"The fan support for school sports is quite dis-heartening in Didsbury, we see the parents, maybe one or two teaching staff ... and that's about it. We have one of the best Senior High Boys Basketball Teams in the province - they play exciting, intense, physical basketball, and are a true pleasure to watch. JV girls team is a pleasure to watch as they have a lot of talent coming up," he said.

Didsbury JV boys gear up for another season. The group will host a tournament first weekend of January.

Despite loss, coach pleased with Colts

BY SYLVIA COLE

Colts were home again this weekend to play two games Saturday and Sunday evening. Colts lost both evenings but coach Gord Olsen said they did a great job fighting hard.

"The boys are really playing well. They could-n't get any breaks over the weekend but they were up against some of the toughest teams," he said of Cochrane Generals and Blackfalds

Ford Wranglers.

Colts lost Saturday against Blackfalds Ford Wranglers, 3-0.

On Sunday, they went up against the generals up against the generals and started out strong with a 2-1 lead at the end of first period but ultimately lost 4-5.

Olsen said it was a great fight and is pleased to see the Colts play so hard against a team that's only lost two games so far this season.

"You can look at it as wins and losses in which case it looks like maybe

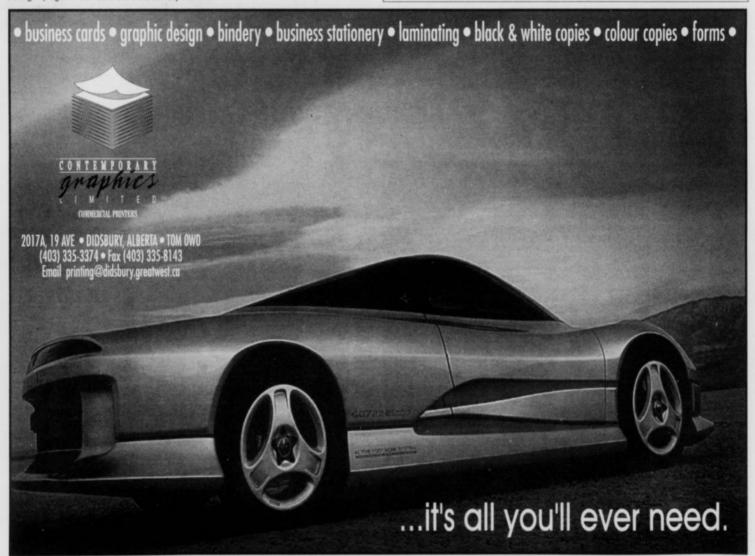

But the coaches are impressed with how well the new guys have improved and we're very nappy with their progress."

Colts will be back and ready to go in the new year with their first game of the year in Medicine Hat January 2. The following weekend they'll return home to play against Airdrie Thunder January 8 at 8 Airdrie p.m. and against Stettler Lightning January 9 at 4p.m.

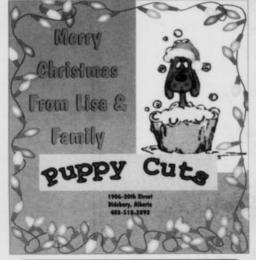

MAKING WAVES - Participants with the senior aquafit program enjoy one of their last class es for the year. The pool will close for three months starting January. Some dry land classes will be offered to seniors in lieu of pool time.

Colts go up against Cochrane Generals Sunday afternoon.

Celebrating Boxing Day

You won't find Rocky Balboa or Mike Tyson pulling punches Boxing Day. That's because the holiday is a bit of an implied misnomer. Boxing Day, celebrated in Britain, New Zealand, Australia, and Canada among others, is really not about fighting - or boxing at all. The holiday's name stems from gifts uncovered from boxes and is celebrated traditionally on December 26 each year.

There are a few different theories of Boxing Day's origins. One links the holiday to opening alms boxes in churches for collecting in churches for donations during the ceason. The money and other donations were then distributed to the needy after the Christmas holiday. Another theory says that Boxing Day stems from members of the merchant class giving boxes containing food and fruit, clothing, and/or money to trades people and servants as a form of bonus or thank-you for a job well done. Because the gifts were packed in boxes, the Boxing Day coined.

Seasonal song a holiday favourite

The song "Winter Wonderland" has become a staple of holiday radio.

Much like "Jingle Bells," 'Winter Wonderland" was not intentionally written to become a Christmas carol, but evolved into one over time.

The song was published in 1934 by composer Felix Bernard and lyricist Richard B. Smith.

Smith resided in the town of Honesdale, Pennsylvania, and was inspired to write thelyrics of the song after seeing Honesdale Central Park and his own childhood home blanketed in snow.

Smith actually wrote the lyrics while being treated in the West Mountain Sanitarium in Scranton, Pennsylvania, for tuberculosis

Many singers have performed the song throughout the years, so much so that it is often a standard song on artists' holiday compilations.

that it is often a standard song on artists' holiday compilations.

Some of the betterknown and earlier versions were made by The Andrews Sisters and Perry Como.

"Winter Wonderland" has evolved into one of those songs that inspires visions of snowy splendor. Original lyrics feature a portion of the song mentioning young lovers being married spontaneously by a traveling "parson," a Protestant minister. Some thought those lyrics sent the wrong message to children, and another version was written with a circus clown, instead.

Meaning of Christmas

Grade 9 Didsbury High School students were assigned recently to create a letter exploring the message Charles Dickens wanted to share regarding the Christmas sea-son, while comparing and contrasting this with what Christmas has become. Teacher Leanne Jacobson chose the following two letters to submit.

Letter by Tianna T.

I am a Grade 9 student currently attending Didsbury High School. My name is Tianna; I have recently attended the production at Theatre Calgary that has had a huge impact on my life.

When I saw A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens, I realized how he changed what Christmas meant.

He wanted it to be a time when families come together and give thanks for the past year. Christmas was meant to be a time for joy and sharing, a time to give to the less for-

When I look around at our community and surrounding cities, I see that Christmas has just turned into a very materialistic thing. It's a time when people become focused on how much money they spent and what gifts they want to receive.

I think this change has had a very negative effect on our population because Christmas in the past was a time when people gave thanks for everything they had, even if it was very little.

Now, Christmas is focused more on what we envy, rather than what we possess. Charles Dickens wanted Christmas to be a time of caring and giving, not getting.

Mr. Dickens wanted Christmas to be about realizing how fortunate we are for what we do have and who we

I believe that if attention is brought to what Christmas has often become, we can change the meaning of it

If we can change the meaning of Christmas, just like Charles did, people will realize more of what they have, more so than what they don't have or what they want.

Christmas will have a more positive effect on communi-ties with something as simple as adding a little realization. To me the best thing at Christmas is being able to see the entire family together, seeing everyone smile because we are together, not because of the gifts we will exchange.

Lbelieve there is nothing wrong with giving someone a present; it just shouldn't be what Christmas is all about.

So this year, when you're celebrating Christmas, think of what you already have not what you want, be thankful and tell loved ones how much you appreciate them, because life can often change quickly.

Letter by Ryan F.

I am currently reading A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens.

In class we are discussing what the original meaning of Christmas was supposed to be.

Christmas was supposed to be about spending time with family and remembering special moments you have shared. With Christmas on the way, I thought it was important to address how Christmas has changed since Mr. Dickens' era.

The first thing I noticed about how Christmas h changed is everyone thinks that Christmas is about gifts. but Christmas is about enjoying time with your family and cherishing the time that you have. I think that this change is negative because everyone has to learn that Christmas is not about receiving gifts, it is about spending time with people you really care about. Another thing that has made a huge impact on Christmas is that everyone expects gifts, but the greatest gift of all is the love from someone you know. I chose aspects of Christmas to be positive because every Christmas needs love. If there is no love then there is no Christmas spirit to enjoy.

Christmas is about caring and love and that is why I think it is important for people to think about the meaning of Christmas. This is a time of sharing memories over the years and how much things have changed. Another important reason why people should care is that when you celebrate the true meaning of Christmas, it lets out the best in you and it shows that everyone has something to celebrate and be thankful for.

The message I would like to address with the community about Christmas is this: don't expect a gift from some-one, instead just be thankful for the love and support that

Emma Hatcher and Kaden Knutson wait excitedly with Santa for their turn to grab some food during the Westglen annual Christmas lunch

Gifts of the Three Kings

With presents and parties foremost on the minds of many, the religious significance of the holiday season can take a backseat to some of the secular celebrations.

One of the religious celebrations of the season is Three Kings Day, also known as the Feast of the Epiphany and Dia de los Tres Reyes. Celebrated on January 6, the Epiphany marks the twelfth day of the Christmas holiday and remembers the three kings who came to bear gifts to the newborn baby Jesus

According to the Bible, three kings, or wise men, named Caspar, Melchior and Balthasar saw a bright star in the the night Christ was born. They followed this star to Bethlehem where they found the child. There they pre-sented Christ with gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

"And going into the house they saw the child with Mary his mother, and they fell down and worshiped him. Then, opening their treasures, they offered him gifts, gold and frankincense and myrrh." (Matthew 2:11)

Frankincense, also called olibanum, is a sap of the Boswellia. The tree is tapped, much as one would a maple tree for syrup, and the frankincense resin drips out in "tears." Frankincense was used for many reasons in ancient times, typically in religious ceremonies as an incense. The aroma of frankincense is said to represent life, and the Judaic, Christian, and Islamic faiths also used frankincense oils to anoint the young. It has also been used in alternative medicine as a stomach aid. Ancient Egyptians used charred frankincense to make kohl, or the eve makeup distinctive of that region.

Myrrh is another tree resin and it comes from the Commiphora species. Myrrh was commonly used as a healing agent, especially an antiseptic. Ancient Greek soldiers carried it to treat and clean wounds earned in battle. Egyptians burned myrrh as part of rituals. It is also another substance burned during religious ceremoni-Myrrh was also used in the embalming process in ancient Historians and religious scholars say that the gifts given to Jesus by the three kings were quite appropriate. The gold represented his royalty, the frankincense his divinity and the myrrh his future death.

On Three Kings Day many people take down holiday decorations and officially call an end to the Christmas ason. They may also exchange small gifts symbolic of the epiphany

Carol draws crowds to every performance

Didsbury High School students performed before packed theatre Friday night during their first evening performance of A Christmas Carol.

The group, including students Grades 9 through 12 started practising for the show in September and instructor Cali Beazley was proud of the results.

"It went really well. I think our last performance was the best, but that's how it usually goes," said

The one hour production of Charle's Dickens' classic tale was performed in one act purposely to give new a taste of theatre

without them, explained Beazley

'I've done some acting before and this was a way to get back into it," said Andrea Roach in a rehearsal leading up to the play. "I think acting is a way to express myself," she said.

Roach played the part of the Ghost of Christmas Past and lead Scrooge through Christmases of the past prompting him to change his ways.

Other ghosts included Ashton Day, Ghost of Yet to Come who didn't reveal his face to the audience. hiding behind his black cloak. Mikahaila Yaskow was Ghost of Christmas Present and received laughs from the audience with her diva-like interpretation of the role kicking her leg to the side and announcing, "Look upon Gabriel Spence. Ebenezer Scrooge transformed from a cantankerous old man booming bahhumbug on stage to dancing and singing a closing song at the end.

Beazley said this will be the last performance does with the school for the year, but hopes to return in the fall and continue offering the program to students

The production was per formed Friday and Saturday evening as well as a matinee on Saturday for the public and a mati-nee on Friday for Westglen students

She enjoyed taking the dogs with her on her daily walks. However, her greatest joy was when her beloved grandchildren would come to visit. In 1997, Christine was diagnosed with early onset Alzheimer's and in May of 2001 she moved from the family farm to long term care in the Didsbury Hospital, where she received years of wonderful loving care.
